

I have been a subscriber to XM Satellite Radio for more than a year and find the information and entertainment it offers to be very valuable and quite entertaining--much more so than standard, broadcast radio. I believe that to restrict, in any way, the availability of the product XM Satellite Radio provides the public, including traffic and weather information, would be a disservice to the public and restraint of trade and technological progress.